Chicago's 12 Most Anticipated Restaurant Openings, Fall 2017

MUSEUM DINING, AN ITALIAN STEAKHOUSE AND SNAZZY TEX-MEX

We can't predict the future, but we don't need a crystal ball to tell us that fall is going to be a great season for new restaurants in Chicago. Between a new museum restaurant from one of Chicago's most respected chefs and a hip New York City export on Fulton Market, here's what's getting us excited for the months to come.

Somerset

Projected opening: September

Boka Restaurant Group joins forces with an LA-based hotel chain for what's sure to be a hit. Set for the Gold Coast's soon-to-open Viceroy Hotel, Somerset will showcase contemporary, seasonal American cuisine by chef Lee Wolen. The decor is inspired by American country clubs, with a sprawling outdoor patio affording prime views of the bustling neighborhood. A poolside restaurant, Devereaux, will also feature food from Wolen.
